Furntech-AFRDI Freight Information Kit

Clients are requested to include the sender's company name on goods. It is essential that they receive a proof of delivery docket from our freight depot. This enables us to track the delivery of items to the laboratory (if necessary).

Unless you have been otherwise advised, Furntech-AFRDI's testing fees typically include the cost to freight the sample to our laboratory using our carrier. However, it is your responsibility to arrange and pay for delivery of the sample to one of our carrier's depots (see list on page 1).

The timeliness of freight delivery to the Institute is directly influenced by volume, i.e. unless a container load of products is being shipped together, slower than expected delivery times may be experienced. Clients should take into account freight delivery from Melbourne is generally up to 1 week, from Sydney 2 weeks, from Brisbane 3 weeks and from Perth can be up to - or exceeding - a month. Therefore, for those requiring results urgently, alternative arrangements to freight the items to Furntech-AFRDI should be made with your preferred carrier at your own cost (we allow a $50 rebate on your testing invoice to cover the freight component of the fee).

Overseas clients please note that import duties, taxes and shipping charges are your responsibility. If you do not have a preferred agent, we recommend you use our customs agents, Kuehne + Nagel, who have global offices and can be contacted at shannon.mcintyre@kuehne-nagel.com
